
Buyer participation changes with price, perceived reliability, in-house alternatives and budgets.
This comparison identifies the best policy within a tested family and assumptions; it does not identify a global market optimum.